Project

Where safety issues are concerned, strength and durability are qualities that are most important when looking to provide physical protection. This is one of the reasons the Gwent Dragons rugby team approached Macrolux to supply its unique compact polycarbonate for their new dugout roof.

Immensely durable, Macrolux compact polycarbonate offers protection against extreme weather conditions and in this case – projectiles. With the addition of Newport Football team to the grounds, it was decided that a roof would be required to protect both players and support staff from overzealous spectators.

Why Macrolux?

Macrolux's compact product was the perfect choice for this project; its transparent qualities combined with its durability and fire-resistance meant that it was the ideal product to fulfil the needs of the client.

Providing weather and projectile protection for both team members and support staff without impinging on light or space within the dugout, Macrolux compact offers peace of mind at every game while at the same time allowing spectators to see every angle of the pitch and not miss valuable seconds of the game.
